

Going to the Store

Sally has been working long shifts at her new job and has barely had any spare time to restock the groceries in her home. It doesn't help that her husband also works a full-time job. She decided to take today off and go shopping as they were beginning to run extremely low on food.

As she scanned her pantry, she noticed that there were very few snacks left over. They had a few candy bars, bags of chips, and crackers, but that was all. Sally realized her husband was also dieting, which meant that she probably had to stock up on salads and vegetables. She made sure to write a small grocery list on a sticky note, as Sally was very forgetful.

Before leaving her apartment, she made sure to grab her keys from her desk in the office room, which was more cluttered than usual. Sally took a small glance around her apartment before leaving, to make sure she hadn't forgotten anything.
